CARNEGIE GIVES TEN MILLIONS MORE

Steel Man Raises is Endowment of Institution in Washington to $25,000,000

New York, Feb. 7.—Andrew Carnegie today played a little joke and enjoyed a five minute chuckle. As a result the Carnegie Institution of Washington is $25,000,000 richer to-day than it was this morning. The $25,000,000 is placed beside the $18,000,000 which Mr. Carnegie already had given the institution.

Mr. Carnegie requested Robert S. Woodward of Washington, president of the institution to call Mr. Woodward came and sent in his card.

"Show him in," said Mr. Carnegie. "Mr. Woodward," said the iron master, as the president entered, "I am very busy. I need some time to devote to my affairs and I dislike to be interrupted. Would you mind waiting in the next room for a while? And, by the way, here is something that may interest you."

Mr. Carnegie nonchalantly handed him a note, followed him to the door and closed it. Then while Mr. Woodward read the endowment Mr. Carnegie sat down at his desk and chuckled.

Praise to Former Chicagoan

Mr. Carnegie made several other announcements, one of which probably puts him into prime condition for his $25,000,000 job and chuckle. This concerned the work done by Prof. George E. Hale, formerly of Chicago, at the observatory of Mount Wilson, Cal. This observatory was established by the institution and its operations afford Mr. Carnegie more delight than any other workings of the institution.

Mr. Carnegie also announced that a far more powerful telescope than man has ever made is now under construction for the observatory. With it he hopes to make possible the discovery of still more celestial bodies. The new telescope will have a lens of 100 inch diameter.

Mr. Carnegie declares that "the whole world is going to listen to the oracle on top of Mount Wilson, and in a few years we shall know more about the universe than Galileo and Copernicus ever dreamed of. I hope I shall live long enough to hear the revelations that are to come from Prof. Hale on Mount Wilson."

Errors in Admiralty Charts

Mr. Carnegie also is well pleased with the results obtained by the yacht Carnegie in correcting the admiralty charts. Incidentally, he announced that the work of the institution had cleared from him the captain of a British ship who ran his vessel upon a rock, by proving that the British admiralty charts by which the captain was guided were 2 or three degrees astray.

"Doubtless you noticed in the telegraphic news of yesterday that the yacht Carnegie had just reached Buenos Ayres," said Mr. Carnegie. "That yacht is the first one ever built with bronze substituted for iron; the latter deflects the magnetic needle and bronze does not. The result is that all former observations are inaccurate."

The Carnegie found two grave errors in the British admiralty charts in its voyage to Great Britain, and returning via the Azores, it found that the English captain was not to blame who ran a great steamer upon the rocks which destroyed it.

Chart Two Degrees Astray

"On the contrary, he was sailing in the right course according to his chart, but the institution yacht proved that the chart was from 2 to 3 degrees astray. The service of the yacht alone will give ample dividends upon the $25,000,000."

"Besides this our young continent of America is able to pay back some of the great debt it owes to the older continent of Europe, which has taught us so much. There is scarcely anything that pleases me so much just now as the success of that little point, the rest of its kind."

"But this is not all the institution is doing. It is experimenting in its geophysical laboratories upon the rocks and analyzing them and will soon be ready to show formula for the making of portland cement or concrete."

"It has found the ingredients necessary by analysis and has included the material can be produced in any part of the world, wherever the elements are found. Therefore, as I understand it, cement could only be made from certain comparatively rare deposits."

CHAMPION TYPIST NEARS OLD RECORD

Rose Fritz, With Strange Dictator, Gives Startling Demonstration in Edmonton

Five years ago, writing on an Underwood Typewriter, in New York, Miss Rose M. Fritz won the championship typist competition of the world, spinning out a total of 266 words in one minute from familiar copy made up of short words.

Yesterday afternoon, in the Bijou Theatre, Edmonton, Miss Fritz, with her favorite machine, the Underwood, came very close to that record by pounding out 243 words in one minute from familiar copy.

Today, Miss Fritz is to make an attempt to beat her own record of 266 words. She has already done it once in her western tour, having written 267 words in one minute last week at Calgary. She has hopes of beating even this record today.

Yesterday, in her demonstration at the Bijou, Miss Fritz was unfortunate. Although she is a champion typist in every particular, she has for some months become accustomed to the dictation of General Manager Seitz, of the United Typewriter Company. She knew the measure of his tone in dictation and he knew the exact measure of her speed. All this means much to a champion typist, or to any typist. But yesterday morning, Mr. Seitz unfortunately took ill, and Miss Fritz was compelled to accomplish her demonstration with the assistance of a strange dictator, from whom she had never before taken dictation. Notwithstanding, she succeeded in coming very close to her well-known records.

She succeeded also in astounding some 300 or 400 Edmonton people who attended the demonstration, including some of Edmonton's prominent business men. Sitting at her desk on an elevated platform her trim figure and graceful arms and hands under control of a perfect will, which allowed nothing of nervousness to jeopardize her work, Miss Fritz gave some demonstrations of her extraordinary skill. Her work is done entirely on the touch system, while writing she scarcely ever glances at her machine, maintaining a steady gaze directly ahead of her while performing. This particularly demonstrates the marvellous speed and accuracy which can be developed under the touch system.

In one minute yesterday, taking from a strange dictator, and writing strange copy, Miss Fritz wrote 243 words in one minute. In her second trial, blindingly, she wrote 122 words without an error, in the minute. Her third test brought forth 146 words from strange copy in a minute. Carrying on an animated conversation with one of her friends from the audience, Miss Fritz then wrote 152 words from strange copy in the minute.

Her most unique test was the writing of 308 words in two minutes, at the same time adding up 3 columns of figures read to her by her dictator. She added up the figures mentally and called out the proper answer as she wrote. Miss Fritz then wrote 243 words in the minute from familiar copy.

Her last test was the writing of 74 words in five minutes, at the rate of 144 per minute, from copy, without error.

"Persistent effort" is the key to Miss Fritz' success as a champion typist. She says she has done nothing that cannot be done by any other girl typist, with the necessary amount of application and concentration.

Taking from a strange dictator makes all the difference in the world, she said to a Capital reporter, after her demonstration of yesterday.

Balfour Discusses Reciprocity

London, Feb. 7.—In course of the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne in the house of commons, the proposed reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States came up for discussion.

St. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the opposition, said that the agreement, if carried out, would have far-reaching results as amount to disastrous consequences. "After 30 years," he said, "of vain endeavor to induce statesmen here to see eye to eye with them, Canadian statesmen have turned towards the south and entered into an agreement with another great country. If this policy reaches its fruition, I shall look upon it as a great disaster."

Airship in War Test

There is to be an aviation meet at El Paso this week, just across the border from Juarez, and Mr. Moisant left here tonight to superintend arrangements.

HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY

Jasper and Third

Edmonton, Alberta

AT THE LYCEUM.

The Sherman Musical Comedy company will make a bid for popular favor at the Lyceum this week starting today. This is in many ways a brand new company judging from the reports that came to light for the past two weeks this bill should prove to be an attractive one. It is a delightful little one act comedy allowing for the interpolation of musical numbers and was formally played by William Courtleigh over the Morris circuit in the east. It is termed "Peaches," the scenes being around a race track and dealing in the real horse talk of the turf. "Peaches" is clean cut and bright, and while the plot is of sufficient strength to carry along the work of the principals and the thread of the story will hold interest and lead to the climax. This charming little act is thoroughly clean and dainty in dialogue and will class as one of the prettiest bills ever presented at the Lyceum. The Maple Leaf Musical Beauty Girls, of which there are ten, are well selected for their vocal ability and will be well employed in animated stage pictures and ensembles.

The girls will show a fine display of costumes. Manager Sherman has secured as an extra added attraction the famous Davidson Sisters, who will introduce their well-known Scotch songs and dances during each performance.

R. S. Lake and C. A. McGrath, western M.P.'s and Hon. James Duff addressed North Oxford Conservatives yesterday. John Lindsay, West Zorra, was elected president of the association.

While the finding of the privy council which corroborates the Canadian Pacific Company's claim to exemption is not very cheerful news for the province of Alberta as a whole, there is the consolation from the Edmonton point of view, that of all parts of the province, this part is the least affected by the decision. In fact, it is not altogether improbable that the effect will, in a way, work out to the advantage of the Edmonton district.

In the country north of the Saskatchewan there is practically no railway land, what little there was having been sold by the C. P. R. to the Western Canada Land Company, which is now paying taxes the same as any other owner.

All the rest of the unoccupied land is free land, open to settlement in a solid block, every quarter as much subject to taxation as every adjoining quarter.

The net result of this condition is that in the country to the north and west of Edmonton every settler will get the gross result of the improvement taxes he pays. Settlers in the north will not be compelled to pay taxes to build roads or ditches past sections which are exempt, and in this respect will be in an immensely better position than settlers in districts where the C. P. R. owns half the land.

The effect, it is easy to see, will be to make the country to the north and west of Edmonton much more attractive for settlers than the country which the railway company has heretofore spent so much money in advertising into popularity. From this time forward there enters this new contributory influence to send the settlers this way.

As a leader of a political party R. L. Borden is about the most gigantic failures that the world has ever known. His career has been a series of enormous blunders, all due to the temporizing nature of the man.

A TEMPORIZING LEADER OF TEMPORIZERS
The distinguishing characteristic of the leader of the conservatives is again brought into prominence in the reciprocity question. On this issue Leader Borden declares that he will not ask his followers to vote as a party, but will leave every member free to vote as he sees fit.

To the electors of the Dominion this is about as unsatisfactory a stand as any leader could take. The party faces neither way. It is neither for nor against reciprocity. When next the conservatives ask for the confidence of the country they will be unable to tell the electorate whether as a party they favor or oppose the reciprocity agreement with United States.

The elevation of a man of Borden's stamp to such an important position as that of leader of the opposition is one of the greatest misfortunes for the country at large. If his mental make-up was such that he could take a stand on anything, there would be no difficulty in determining which side the public favored, as a fight on clear-cut lines would be possible. Where he faces both ways on everything, the opponents of any policy have no chance to declare themselves against that policy, for they cannot find in Mr. Borden an absolute opponent of anything, any more than they can find in him an absolute supporter of anything.

Borden is a temporizing leader of temporizers. His characteristics qualify him more for a sewing circle than for parliament.

More absolute rot is being talked about the reciprocity agreement with United States than about any one subject which has engaged the attention of the Canadian public for many years, and of this yammering foolishness possibly the most foolish utterance comes from the Pall Mall Gazette, which says Canada must bid farewell to all her greatness and become the fifty-first star to the flag which will rule the continent.

A POOR COMPLIMENT TO CANADA'S STEADFASTNESS
It seems to be the destiny of Canada to be misunderstood in England, and the greatest promoters of this misunderstanding are the Canadians who have attained positions of prominence in Great Britain; men like Gilbert Parker and Max Aiken, who arise on this occasion to denounce the Canadian parliament for the reciprocity and to decry the wisdom of any extension of the Dominion's trade which does not coincide with their Unionist theory.

But the Pall Mall Gazette is the first to come forward with the statement that because United States opens her markets to Canadian wheat and beef Canada is certain to secede from the empire and become an integral part of the United States.

If such a statement is to be taken to mean that this is the estimate which Britishers place on Canada's steadfastness toward the empire, the discovery of their views is certainly not complimentary to Canadians. If, on the other hand, the mere act of lifting a tariff embargo is all that is needed to accomplish the annexation of Canada, it is a very poor compliment to the astuteness of United States congresses that they did not discover the process long ago and gather us under the stars and stripes.

THIS IS MY BIRTHDAY

Daniel F. Lafcaine representative in Congress from the Twentieth district of Pennsylvania, was born in York, Pa., Feb. 7, 1864, and received his education in the public schools of his native place. As a young man he engaged in the manufacture of candy and through his business ability rose from a poor boy to millionaire. He is still known to his intimates as the "candy king," although his interests have now extended to many other manufacturing, commercial and financial enterprises. Mr. Lafcaine was elected a unanimous Republican nomination and elected to the Fifty-eighth congress. He has been re-elected to each succeeding Congress, notwithstanding the fact that the district he represents is normally Democratic. He is a director of Gettysburg College and of Gettysburg Seminary and two years ago he was mentioned for the Republican nomination for governor of Pennsylvania.

VALUED TOO LIGHTLY

(Strome Dispatch)
The Edmonton Capital thinks that the resources of Alberta were too lightly valued when the province was constituted. That has been the experience of all the provinces at the outset, and even now we question if our people have the faintest conception of the vast natural resources yet undeveloped in this great Alberta of ours.

THE TRUE FUNDAMENTAL

(Vancouver World)
There is a vigorous protest from representatives of certain lines of business that they would be injured by tariff revision. When you get right down to the bottom of the matter, that is just the reason why the tariff should be honestly revised.

AMERICAN VIEW OF ROYALTY

(Chicago Tribune)
England has persuaded Portugal to make provision for Manuel, the refugee, and he has been put on the pay roll for $3,300 a month, with back pay for October, November and December. So long as the deposed king was without money there were possible embarrassments in the situation for the British authorities. A monarch shabby and uncorred for running at large might cheaper royalty. There is no objection to Manuel joining the English army of the unemployed, but it was desirable not to make a scandal of it. It is pay is not much for a king, but it may do for one who is not working.

FARMERS' OBJECTIONS.

Farmers' objections to the new market regulations will be freely aired at the council meeting this evening, and as the outcome the by-law may be amended in several particulars.

Ald. Gowan, chairman of the market committee, who strenuously opposed in council the proposal to rent the market, but found no support, declared this morning that many of the flaws in the by-law are irreparable. "Some clauses of the by-law which I opposed in council, I must now as chairman of the market committee support," said Alderman Gowan, "for since the market has now been rented, there is a third party to consider. Any radical changes in the by-law would necessitate the drafting of a new agreement with the renter of the market."

Capital estimates for the year, with the exception of the estimates of the power house department, will, it is anticipated be finally passed by the council at the regular meeting this evening. The estimates of the power house department may vary by $100,000 according to the types of machinery installed, and as tenders for the machinery will not be opened until March 1, the estimates cannot be passed until then.

The question of establishing a municipal yard and stable north of the city stores, will be brought up this evening. Items in the various estimates, for teams to be required for permanent use, were left over a couple of weeks ago, as several aldermen objected to the principle of establishing a city stable, holding that it would prove injurious to the interests of teamsters.

These items total between $35,000 and $40,000.

THINK THIS OVER

FIVE years ago Edmonton was a city of less than 10,000 people. The total assessed valuation was less than $10,000,000. Lots on 1st St. in Norwood which are now selling for $1200 to $2000 were then offered for $120 per lot, $10 down and $10 per month. We sold those lots and we advised our clients to buy. Because we knew the city was going to grow and that they could not fail to make money. Everyone who took our advice realized handsome profits.

Note what happened in the other subdivisions. Lots on Alberta Avenue in Delton which were then selling for $125 are now bringing from $600 to $800 and are in great demand at that. Lots in Santa Rosa which were originally offered at $120 have since been sold for $300 to $800. Lots in Dwyer, Eastwood, New Delton and Mount Lawn have trebled in value in less than five years. Lots in the Belvedere subdivision, which we sold less than a year ago, have already shown an appreciation of 50 per cent. and in some cases 700 per cent. We advised our clients to buy Belvedere and all who followed our advice made money.

We Advise You Now To Buy Alberta Park Acreage

Why? Because Alberta Park is high class acreage within one mile of the city limits, offered at a price which positively guarantees a large profit in a comparatively short time. This property will be needed in a very short time for residential purposes. The five-acre blocks are laid out in a manner to make subdivision easy. The city is growing in that direction. Alberta Park is two miles closer to the city than Belvedere, which is selling for five or six times the price, and is worth it. No other property as advantageously located can be had for anything like the same price.

Anniversary of The Birth of Great Britain's First Queen

It was 274 years ago yesterday that Anne, first Queen of Great Britain, was born at Twickenham Palace in the town of Twickenham, a few miles southwest of London. Her father, then Duke of York, was later James II, the last king of England. Her mother, Ann Hyde, the daughter of the Earl of Clarendon died when she was seven years old, and little Anne was left to the care of her vascillating father. Although her father professed himself a member of the church of Rome he allowed his daughters to be brought up according to the principles of the Church of England, for which she retained an ardent if not enlightened attachment.

Anne had a troubled life. Her affectionate nature was subjected to many cruel blows. She made friends easily and loved them, dearly and thereby suffered much. Her children, seventeen in number, with the exception of one, died in infancy. The one that survived the cradle died in 1702 two years before Anne ascended the throne.

During the reign of her father she lived in retirement, but when the Prince of Orange landed in England she was persuaded by the Duchess of Marlborough, who exercised a considerable influence over her, in the investigation of the Duke, to adopt certain measures which lead to Orange taking the throne. From that time until her tragic death Anne was continually an important figure in political intrigue.

During the early part of her life before her ascension of the throne Anne was very much under the influence of Lady Churchill. In the Duchess of Marlborough the wife of the Duke, but when Anne became Queen she discarded her former favorite because she presumed upon the friendship made during her childhood. Quarrels with her sister, her father and different favorites over trivial matters added to Anne's unhappiness. Her husband to whom she was married in 1683 was a nonentity notable for nothing beyond the fact that he married her.

In so far as she had political principles they were opposed to constitutional liberty of which her own occupancy of the throne was a sort of a symbol. She believed in having absolute control and the royal prerogative. These alienated her from the Marlboroughs who were adverse to Jacobinism and who along with Godolphin were at the head of the Whig party. When she had discarded the Duchess she secured another favorite in Mrs. Masham who in 1710 had a big influence in the defeat of the Whig party, and the placing of the Tories in power. The Tory party concurred with the queen in her desire to place her brother on the throne when she died but quarrels in the cabinet destroyed their influence.

On August 1st, 1714 Anne died from Apoplexy brought on by her efforts to stop a quarrel of many hours duration between Oxford and Mrs. Masham. It is said that the queen listened to them quarrelling for over 18 hours and vainly endeavored to pacify them.

She was succeeded by the Elector of Hanover as George I. The principal events of her reign were the union of England and Scotland, Anne having the distinction of being the last queen of these countries separate and the first ruler of Great Britain and the war of the Spanish succession in which the English commander Marlborough won so many brilliant victories over the continental armies. Her period was one of remarkable literary production and scientific investigation but it owed nothing to Anne.

SIR HENRY IRVING BORN 73 YEARS AGO

Noted English Actor Had Many Trials and Tribulations During His Brilliant Career

The art of the modern stage probably reached its highest development in the acting of Sir Henry Irving. Although his interpretation of Shakespearean characters came in for considerable criticism and caused much difference of opinion they were undoubtedly original and possessed of a physiological force with which no previous characterization was imbued. It is 73 years ago to-day that Sir Henry was born. His original name was John Henry Brodribb and the event of his birth occurred in the village of Kenton, Somersetshire. He was educated in a private school and placed in a commercial position but early began studying for the stage. He made his first professional appearance in 1856. After playing for a number of years in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Manchester and many other cities in the provinces he secured an engagement at the St. James' Theatre, London. During these early days of his career he had to endure many hardships and discouragements but acquired a name as an interpreter of light comedy parts and heaves, villain characters as Robert Macaire and Bill Sikes.

His first big success was made as Digby Grant in the Two Roses performed at the Vaudeville Theatre in 1870, running for 300 consecutive nights. In those days a run of 300 nights was a remarkable performance. In 1871, he was engaged by the Lyceum Theatre and from that time his success on the stage was assured. Among the notable performances given at that theatre by him were: The Bells, Eugene Aram, 1073, Richelieu, 1873, Hamlet, 1874 and other Shakespearean plays.

In 1876 he made a tour of Scotland and Ireland. In 1879 he assumed the management of the Lyceum Theatre and from that time the history of that playhouse is the history of Sir Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry who played opposite.

As manager his productions were notable for the elaborate stage setting and as an actor his character portrayal was remarkable for the physiological impressiveness. In 1899 the Lyceum passed into the hands of a limited liability company through Irving still acted as manager. Among the famous parts which he played are: Shylock 1879, Benedict in Much Ado About Nothing 1882, Me-perity of the city. This in relation to civil departments.

On the other hand, a water main sewer to burst, said his worship, it might be an advantageous to the city for the amount of the damage to be published. The newspapers were welcome to such information as to accidents of this kind as might be obvious to any passerby. If, however, the newspapers were to be informed that damage had been done, people who might think they had claims against the city, would be inclined to accuse their claims.

Best newspaper sends in an exorbitant claim for damage done to its property.

Mayor Armstrong is to be judge as to what information of this kind is in the interests of the city, and what information shall be suppressed. "The city must be run on business lines," he said.

"If you want any information at the departments and they don't want to give it to you, ring me up," said his worship, as the newspaper men left his office.

In 1883 he brought his complete company to America where he produced nearly his English successes.

It was in 1895 that he was knighted. In 1896 he was married to Florence Waghorn. Both of his sons are eminent on the stage.

Irving worked right to his pathetic death. He was playing the Bells, and every night he died on the stage, and it was but a few minutes after he left the theatre that he fell uttering as his last words the words "Into Thy hands I—"

Chapman's Advertising and Show Card Service

In these days of keen competition and business rivalry, the character of the store is often judged by the general appearance of the store's front. Now, no progressive merchant wants his show windows to present the appearance of a "junk shop" the year around; yet crudely lettered, ill proportioned and gaudy colored amateurish show cards do more towards marring the appearance of the store front and seemingly deteriorating the value of the merchandise than any other detail.

Now, Mr. Merchant, you can secure satisfactory show cards at reasonable prices right here in your home town. Office over Bijou Theatre, First Street. Phone 4357

"A STUBBORN CINDERELLA." Dull care is a stranger at the court of "A Stubborn Cinderella," with merry song and dance her subjects have no time for anything but laughter for a background. One of the crowning numbers of this delightful musical comedy is "Love Me Just Because," sung by the sprightly Loris and the ardent lover, "Steeter," and has, before it is ended, the full chorus for a background.
